

2018 American National Standards Institute (ANSI) and Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) new window treatment safety standards

The Window Covering Manufacturers Association (WCMA) put out a memo based on the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) and the Consumer Product Safety Commission's (CPSC) newly approved and mandated standards stating that effective December 15th, 2018, a new safety standard will be in affect that deals with the unsafe nature of corded window covering products.

The new blind with operating instructions, and mandatory warning label are below. The new warning label will be mandatory for all window treatment products.

To open/close slats - twist the wand in either direction, left or right using wrist movement

To move up/bring down the blind - hold bottom rail in hand and push upward or pull downward
